Translation Technologies
The Philological School of Higher Education in Wrocław and C&M Localization Center invite academics, professional translators and students to take part in the conference The Translator and the Computer 2. Resources, which will be held on October 25-26, 2014. The conference will cover practical aspects of use of computers and dedicated software tools in the translator's work. We are planning to convene a special lexicographic session on various aspects of the use of bilingual dictionaries in the translator’s work. We hope to give the participants a platform to share their experiences, which will provide ideas for improvement of the work. The conference will also provide an opportunity to discuss the likely future of translation studies, translator’s work and bilingual lexicography in the context of rapid development of information technologies.

The topics include, but are not limited to, the following:

- use of established standard computer tools (such as editors, databases, spreadsheets, search engines, general dictionaries etc.);
- use of established specialist computer tools (such as translation memories, computer-assisted translation systems, machine translation tools, specialist dictionaries etc.);
- analysis of established resources for translation;
- new tools and resources for translators;
- use of computers in translation studies;
- use of computers in translators' training;
- use of established resources for translation (such as electronic texts or corpora available on the Internet, etc.);
- the past, the present and the future of bilingual dictionaries in the context of the translator’s work.

We are also planning to hold special sessions dedicated to presentation of commercial software and practical CAT tools workshops - memoQ and SDL Trados Studio, which will be given by experienced professional translators.

Languages of the conference are English and Polish.
